

China's gold policy Is one of the world's most important developments.

written by Edward Maas | March 20, 2014

"The Matterhorn Interview – March 2014: Koos Jansen"

Audio interview: on behalf of Matterhorn Asset Management, Zurich, Lars Schall talked with the young Dutchman Koos Jansen about Chinese gold policy. Koos Jansen, born 1981, worked as a sound engineer in Amsterdam, before he became disabled in 2013.

"China's gold policy – One of the world's most important developments."

About Koos Jansen

Koos started his financial blog "In Gold We Trust" (ingoldwetrust.ch/) in 2013. His curiosity about our market made him gather an incredible amount of information in a relatively short period of time about the Chinese gold market and he gained much insight into the role of gold in international financial markets. He now shares his information and experiences vividly with a larger audience primarily via his blog.

Like other commentators Jansen sees the development in China as an expression of the shift of power from the West towards the East. In his estimation, as of Q1 2014 Chinese authorities own between 3.000 – 4.000 tons of gold in their vaults in order to support the internationalization of the Yuan.