

PART ONE: The Dollar Reserve Equilibrium Is Breaking Down – John Butler

written by Edward Maas | October 28, 2013

“The Matterhorn Interview – 28 Oct. 2013: John Butler – Part 1”

On behalf of Matterhorn Asset Management Zurich, London-based investment manager John Butler met with German financial journalist Lars Schall in Munich to discuss some of the major aspects of international affairs as they relate to the sphere of finance. In Part 1 (18 minutes) of this tremendous and informative video interview they focus in particular on the U.S. dollar and the challenges that may arise if China would back the yuan with gold. Butler: if gold would be remonetized in a historical proper fashion, its price would be a lot higher.

Egon von Greyerz

In Part Two (20 minutes), which we publish On October 29, John Butler will touch upon the collapse of the paper gold market, the prospect of trading nations refusing paper money in exchange for their exports and why the euro was perhaps in principal a fine idea, but won't survive in its current form.

“Part 1: The Dollar Reserve Equilibrium Is Breaking Down”

John Butler, who studied economics, history, philosophy and international politics, has worked for over 15 years as an interest rate, currency and commodity strategist at major investment banks in North America and Europe. He was Managing Director and Head of the Index Strategies Group at Deutsche Bank in London, and Managing Director and Head of European Interest Rate Strategy at Lehman Brothers in London. He's now the Chief Investment Officer of Amphora Capital, an independent investment and advisory firm in the City of London. In 2012 he published the book “The Golden Revolution: How to Prepare for the Coming Global Gold Standard,” published by John Wiley and Sons.

Matterhorn Asset Management is dedicated to wealth preservation through safe and secure silver and gold storage in Switzerland. Protect your gold in the world's safest vaults. To become a client, click here.