REALVISION TV – Timeless Arguments by Egon von Greyerz

RealVision TV gives you direct access to world-class financial experts. And crucially RealVisionTV gives them the freedom to say what they really think about the issues that they believe matter.

Subscribers include some of the world's largest and most successful hedge funds, pension funds, sovereign wealth funds and Family Offices.

Back in May last year Real Vision TV recorded a number of pre-launch interviews in San Diego during John Mauldin's strategic investment conference. As I was there, Grant Williams interviewed me and although 8 months have passed since then, the interview is timeless and might be worth your while to watch.

The short interview below is just over 4 minutes long. Among other things I talk about gold as insurance against unprecedented risks in the financial system as well as the risks of a hyperinflationary depression. I also explain what the best lesson is that I have learnt.

RealVision TV access is by subscription only

RealVision Television – <https://realvisiontv.com/> – is a totally unique web based channel which contains a number of exceptionally thought-provoking interviews with intelligent, free-thinking individuals. Many of the people interviewed are well known but there are quite a few who have a lower profile and who are extremely interesting.

Real Vision was set up by my very good friend Grant Williams and by my new friend Raoul Pal. Grant is well known to most people through his superb and very popular newsletter "Things That Make You Go Hmmm". Raoul is one of outstanding bright analysts in the financial industry. A real think tank in his own right he publishes "The Global Macro Investor" which is an internationally-renowned and highly successful monthly global macro advisory publication.
