

War Drums – The End Of An Empire

written by Egon von Greyerz | March 30, 2016

War Drums – The End Of An Empire

By Egon von Greyerz

In this week's KWN interview Egon von Greyerz takes a closer look at the geopolitical environment, areas of potential conflict, social unrest and war, and shares his insight on why it is important for today's investor to identify and understand these risks.

"In the last stages of an empire, a major war is normally the final act to divert attention from the distraught economic situation..."

Egon continues to talk about the many conflict areas that could develop into a major war and how this is linked to the coming economic downturn.

He also looks at an interesting historic correlation between silver and annual wage – a measurement that has got out of sync – and why silver is likely to come back to the historic norm.

For further detail and insight please click here to see my latest KWN interview.

Egon von Greyerz
Matterhorn.gold
GoldSwitzerland.com