KWN weekly – October 2, 2014

Greyerz: “Eric, we’ve had a long period now when all news is good news for stocks, and that’s typical for a bull market. But we are now very close to a period when all news will instead be bad news for global stock markets. For instance, the mainstream media is telling people that stocks are falling because of the end of QE and the Ebola crisis.

“Previously, this type of bad news was simply ignored. But as I said, everything that comes out now will begin to add to the selloff in global stock markets. People being interviewed on KWN have discussed Ebola..

In this Interview:

- Global selloff stock markets in the making
- Argentina hyperinflation
- Annual 8 Trillion US refinancing
